LOCAL SENIOR CITIZEN CENTER

A good head and a good heart are always a formidable combination.

Nelson Mandela

DIRECTOR'S MESSAGE

Friends,

A new beginning. A new building. A new leadership with new ideas. This is the state of Loose as we enter a new year. The Loose Board, volunteers and staff continue to explore new programs and activities to satisfy the needs of our membership. Staff has been expanded to meet the everyday work load. Financial support is in place to secure our financial responsibilities. Committees have taken ownership of the difficult details that need to be researched to make sound decisions for the benefit of Loose.

Now, we prepare to take on the task of a new building. This involves the reviewing and adopting of design standards. Once a design is in place, the next step is construction. And in the end, the decision of scheduling and the use of the new structure. To meet this challenge and fulfill this dream will require strong leadership. This leadership is in place. The Loose Board has appointed its Executive Committee who is charged with overseeing the tasks at hand. They will be responsible for the present and future of Loose.

"A good head and a good heart are always a formidable combination." The appointed Executive Committee has these attributes. Vince Eible, as Treasurer, brings a wealth of knowledge on finance and ability to strengthen our financial portfolio. Vince has taken the time to be active and learn the internal workings of Loose and developed a passion for the members' needs and what we represent in the community.

Alberta Martin is a long standing member of the Loose Center and Board. Her background in a leadership role, in education and the medical field makes her a strong secretary. Her attention to detail plays a big part in the success of our committee decisions. She oversees important issues and understands the impact of the results. Alberta and her husband Donald are very active in Loose programs and truly feel it is their second home.

Ron Wagner is the history of Loose, being a person who started and organized the Center from Day One. A large part of his life is entwined in the legend of the Center. He has held many positions and been part of Loose's success. Ron has stepped up to be the Vice President and also will chair the building and governance committees. Ron's life and this Center have been one since 1996. He continues to give of his time to promote and support Loose.

Ken Wensel has played many roles at Loose. He came as an at large member and quickly became involved in many of the activities. He took on the challenge of interim program director. During that time, he expanded programs and saw the need to hire a full-time person to meet the needs of the Center's operation. The creation of the staff position of program director helped establish Loose as a leader in senior activities. Ken's background in education and being an active volunteer in the community serves the Center well with his new ideas and fresh approaches to the members. He is committed to Loose and the constant needs of its membership. For these reasons, the Board has appointed Ken as our new president. Under his leadership, Loose is ready for a new beginning.

So, I present to you the new leadership for the "New Loose". It is in their hands that we place our faith for leadership, understanding and sound decisions. It is our job to support them and take their lead. "A good head and a good heart are always a formidable combination."

Carl Gabrielson

He then went on to graduate from Michigan State University with a degree in Agriculture and Economics.

Dick brings to the table a career in Investments and finance, a willingness to serve and a love for Loose. Dick has been volunteering with the Loose daily lunch program for many years and also volunteers at Genesys. Welcome Dick, and thank you!
